Tustin HS District Chief Foresees Financial Crisis

By Carl E. Venstrom

"The Great Race: Growth vs. Education in Orange County" was the title of a speech given last week to the Kiwanis Club of Mission Viejo by Robert Dahlberg, Superintendent of the Tustin Union High School District.

Dahlberg presented a ten year growth report to the local service club covering the sprawling high school district which covers a 180 square miles and covers the Tustin elementary district; the San Joaquin Elementary district and the Trabuco Elementary District.

Borders of the high school district, said Dahlberg, run along the cities of Orange, Santa Ana, Newport Beach, Laguna and Capistrano.

"Population of the high school district," said Dahlberg, "will at least double within the next ten years."

The Superintendent pointed out that five years ago when he accepted his position, there was one high school in Tustin. Since then two others have been completed: Foothill High in Tustin and Mission Viejo High in Mission Viejo.

"Construction of a fourth high school will start in January of 1969, to be located across from the University of California at Irvine," reported the superintendent.

Recommendation for a sixth high school will be presented to the school board sometime during the next year.

Dahlberg said the problem of communication within the district is a great one since the high school district covers so many different communities with a great variety of different educational philosophies among the residents.

Superintendent Dahlberg said that the high school district is presently offering a minimum, adequate program, but that with the rapid increase of enrollment, the district will need more money. Without this increase of revenue, said Dahlberg, we will have an

EDITORIAL:

Public Schools Cost Money

A thorough report on the present status of the Tustin Union High School District and its needs for the next ten years were given last week by Superintendent Robert Dahlberg to the Kiwanis Club of Mission Viejo.

A complete news account of his speech is given on page one of this newspaper.

In brief, Dahlberg said that the sprawling high school district—spread over a 180 square miles and bordering the cities of Orange, Santa Ana, Newport Beach, Laguna and Capistrano—is presently offering a minimum, adequate high school program but that more revenue will be needed as student enrollment increases.

Without this added revenue, said Dahlberg, the quality of high school education for our area will start to decline. The Superintendent backed up these statements with facts, figures, growth projections and cost of high school education. All of these studies are available to the public at the Superintendent's offices, located at 1171 Laguna Road in Tustin.

In his speech, Superintendent Dahlberg said that the problem of communication within the high school district is a great one since the school district covers so many different communities with a great variety of different educational philosophies among the residents.

Dahlberg's speech was factual with the thesis that our residents will have the quality of high schools that they vote for at the tax polls within the near future.

The readers of this newspaper were congratulated two weeks ago on their support of the Saddleback Junior College District bond issue for $9.5 million dollars to be used for the construction of buildings, the furnishing of buildings and the hiring of staff. It now appears that our rapidly growing community will have to focus their attention on the Tustin Union High School District which serves the needs of the high school youth of our area.

Focus must also be given to the San Joaquin Elementary School District which serves the readers of this newspaper. Their needs are as great as the high school districts.

In other words, "things are jumping out here" and our residents have to assume the responsibility of keeping up with the total needs of our schools and our community.

A running account of these community needs will be presented in THE RANCHO REPORTER as we run across them.

Dear Carl:

It goes without saying that the influence of you and your newspaper were very significant in the approval of Saddleback College's bond proposal. I sincerely thank you for your concern.

Your news columns reflected responsible reporting, needed to inform the people. Your forthright editorial stand was courageous, symbolic of the leadership required to make our institution of higher learning one of the most outstanding community colleges, as we are determined it will be.

It is the philosophy of the Saddleback College Board of Trustees that our community college must reflect the thinking and judgment of the people. It was with this philosophy in mind that the Board asked for the people's decision on the $9.5 million bond proposal. Thanks to your newspaper and your leadership we believe that it was an informed voter who went to the polls and overwhelmingly approved the proposal.

We commend Dan C. Woolridge of your staff. Reportorial work and news writing is of course the newspaper role, just as we feel it is the duty of the college to discuss its business in public, but the responsible reporting of your staff has brought honor to your newspaper.

Communicating with everyone in the 329-square mile district is no small task, but the responsible fourth estate has been the key between the public, its elected representatives and the college administrators. As we turn to other phases of opening our new college, specifically in regard to the student and curriculum, we are grateful, and confident, that your endeavors will help our community college reflect the needs and desires of the people.

Again, thank you.
Sincerely,
Jack S. Roper

Chapman Raises Tuition $100 Per Semester

—Tuition charges at Chapman College will be increased by $100 per semester effective in September, 1968, it has been announced. Board and room costs will remain unchanged.

Beginning in the 1968-69 school year, full time students at Chapman College will pay $1400 in tuition annually.

In announcing the tuition increase, Dr. John L. Davis, president of the private liberal arts college, stated: "So long as the present spiral of inflation persists, all colleges that depend on tuition for a major portion of their income must either lower their standards and risk losing their best teachers or else meet their financial needs by increasing their charges to students."

"In this situation, we can only follow the course that leads to a better program," Dr. Davis added.

The additional income will be used largely to increase salaries, as well as assure a balanced operating budget.

"We want no student to be forced out of Chapman by this increase in costs and will do our best to meet genuine hardship cases when they are brought to our attention," Dr. Davis stated.

Chapman's last tuition increase was in 1966. The new tuition rate will place Chapman in the middle of the range of the costs at similar private colleges and universities in the Southern California area.

"Meet Your Neighbor"

by Dan C. Wooldridge
News Editor

"El Toro has changed and will continue to change," says Mrs. Doris Prothero, long-time resident whose chief interests are raising grandchildren, oranges and lecturing about the history of El Toro.

Mrs. Prothero has for 46 years lived in the house located on Prothero Drive which she and her husband, Raymond built during the 1920's. The Prothero ranch consists of 60 acres most of which are planted in orange trees. A portion of the Prothero land contains the U.S. post office on El Toro Road.

The Prothero roots go deep into the El Toro area. Mr. Raymond Prothero has lived in the valley since 1900. The two Prothero sons, Ray, Jr. and Earl, were raised and still live in El Toro while daughter Mrs. Clifford Prothero Potter now resides in Tustin.

Mrs. Doris Prothero remembers walking to the El Toro Country Store down dusty El Toro Road to pick-up the mail. The Prothero children attended school at the old El Toro School of which her husband, Raymond, was a long-time Trustee.

Doris Prothero today looks back with pride on the history and growth of the El Toro Valley. The name El Toro has existed in this area since 1841 and Mrs. Prothero discusses this and related historical data when she speaks to groups about the valley's heritage. Mrs. Prothero recently spoke to 33 residents of Leisure World at the Adobe in Trabucco Canyon. Mr. and Mrs. Prothero have spoken frequently to Leisure World state and historical groups about the history of the area.

During World War II Mrs. Prothero frequently invited young Marines from the then new El Toro Marine Base to the family home. The Marines aided the Protheros by helping to pick some of their peaches and oranges and in return, Mrs. Prothero remembers taking them down to the beach and going grunion hunting.

The Prothero barn had a metal roof and the young pilots returning to the Marine Base were guided to the field by it. The Prothero's especially remember one rather costly Marine who visited their land. An emergency landing by this pilot managed to cut down 31 orange trees just prior to their being picked. The Protheros lost $5,000 on the landing and the pilot lost the plane, but he did receive a cut finger and a free bath of orange juice.

The Protheros speak with pride of their contribution and of those of their long-time neighbors who were instrumental in bringing water to this part of Orange County. From 1930 on the Protheros were forced to drill 26 wells with the first reaching water at 16 feet, but by 1960 the water depth reached 1632 feet.

The ranchers were faced with an acute water shortage and accordingly they formed the El Toro Water District. In 1961 a $1,800 — bond election was put before the voters of El Toro.

The bond election is one of the most famous in all of California for two reasons. First, the assessed valuation of the El Toro Water District was only $325,000 for $1,800,000 worth of bonds which is the complete reversal for normal bond elections; and second, the voters of the El Toro Water District votes 100 percent YES for the bonds. Mrs. Prothero said, "most people don't realize the old-timers are responsible for their water."

Mr. and Mrs. Prothero see the end within 5 or 10 years of citrus growing in the El Toro area. The heavy burden of taxes is becoming heavier and the farm land is frozen at R-1 which prevents any commercial or industrial use.

The Protheros are philosophic about the demise of the citrus growers, but they reflect proudly that El Toro once grew the best quality and largest quantity of oranges in the County. The El Toro community then existed as a group of individuals who were a hardy group who asked for and received no favors from the Federal government.

Mrs. Doris Prothero says that today the chief need of the El Toro area is for parks and playgrounds. Many local children play in the Prothero trees near El Toro Road and cause the destruction of many oranges. Mrs. Prothero doesn't blame the children, but says parents frequently send the children out into their fields with buckets to pick oranges. The Protheros estimate that annually they lose 500 - 1,000 boxes of fruit through destruction or theft.

In the old days the children of the ranchers would never think of destroying their parents' fruit, but today unfortunately the Prothero lands provide a convenient playground for local children.

Long Time El Toro Residents Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Prothero are seen in a picture taken last year for a Sidney, Australia newspaper.

Veteran Turned Priest Visiting Laguna Hills

By ELIZABETH PEDROTTI

When peace came to the South Pacific in 1946, a young Air Force radar technician returned to the United States with an objective. He wanted to become an Electrical Engineer, so immediately he enrolled at St. Louis University to train for this career.

While attending classes he began to observe another way of life and one which he felt would be more rewarding for him. He decided to become a Jesuit priest like those he respected and admired, who were instructing him at this Roman Catholic University.

Today, his objective achieved, The Reverend Robert F. Houlihan, S.J., was observed spending a few days in the home of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Houlihan, 810-D Ronda Mendoza, in Leisure World, Laguna Hills.

While chatting with him it was learned that Father Houlihan was ordained to the priesthood in 1957 at St. Mary's in Kansas by The Most Reverend Edward Hunkeler, Archbishop of Kansas City, Kansas.

Father Houlihan was assigned to St. Louis University as Assistant Superior for young Jesuits for four years, and then became Minister of Scholastics there. Later he served as Academic Dean at Regis College, Denver, Colorado, and presently is Dean of Students. Regis College is one of 28 Jesuit Colleges in the United States.

Born in Peoria, Illinois, he has the distinction of having a sister who is a nun, Sister Roberta of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondelet.

Recently Father Houlihan was given a grant while attending an Institute in Michigan. He was one of 12 selected for the purpose of finding methods of improving their jobs. A regional meeting at the University of California, at Irvine brought him into the Laguna Hills area where he offered several early morning Masses at St. Nicholas Catholic Church during his stay.

Two Mayan Indians Live At UC Irvine

Two Maya Indians from Mexico are raising crops of beans, corn, squash and chile by traditional Indian methods in an experimental anthropology instruction program at the University of California, Irvine.

The two Indians, who speak Tzeltal, a daughter language of ancient Mayan, have been assisting anthropology Professor Duane Metzger with an undergraduate class dealing with Maya culture.

In return, the two Indians, Alonso Guzman Mendez, 24, and Pedro Perez Conde, 21, are receiving lessons in the Spanish language from UCI. They have been residing and tending their crops during the Winter Quarter at old tenant farm quarters which are now a part of the 1500-acre UCI campus.

Their work, customs and language have been observed by UCI anthropology students.

The Indians occasionally lend a touch of color to the campus, attending classes in their native costume. They are part of a program to bring demonstrations of exotic culture to campus to supplement standard methods of anthropology instruction.

Metzger compares his plan of bringing native informants to meet with anthropology students to programs in fine arts which provide artists-in-residence to meet with art students.

Metzger originally met Mendez and Conde when they serged him as interpretors during field trips to the state of Chiapas, Mexico.

As part of a continuing project of study of Samoan language and culture, UCI anthropologists plan to establish a simulated interior of a Samoan house at the farm. During the spring, a Samoan boat builder and necessary equipment and material for the construction of a Samoan bonito fishing boat (known as a Va'a alo) will be brought to the farm site.

The boat builder, from the island of Upolu, Western Samoa, will construct the boat under day-to-day observation by students and faculty. Plans also call for observation of Samoan fishing methods, as the boat-builder tries out the new vessel off the coast at Newport Beach.

Irvine Commences Its New Industrial Associates Program

Establishment of an Industrial Associates Program at the University of California, Irvine — designed to promote campus interaction with business and industry — was announced today by Chancellor Daniel G. Aldrich, Jr.

The program is being launched, after the pattern of similar organizations at Stanford, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cal Tech and other universities which have been notable in helping to foster regional industrial development, Dr. Aldrich said.

Named as first president of the UCI Industrial Associates board of directors is John M. Rau, president of David Industries. An alumnus of MIT, Rau has been active in civic and professional organizations and is a director of the Friends of UCI.

John Spear, director of community and alumni relations for UCI, was elected as liaison officer and executive secretary.

Bylaws of the Associates list the following specific purposes of the organization: establishment of channels of communication between the industrial community and UCI; promotion of mutual interests among the scientific segments of the community; and encouragement of formal support of UCI by the industrial economy with which it interacts.

Membership is on a sliding fee basis and is open to all industrial, scientific, research and development organizations, health groups, hospitals and chambers of commerce.

According to Spear, membership will provide the opportunity for a closer and more beneficial relationship between UCI faculty and scientific and technical personnel in the community. Services include reports and publications of University research, invitations to technical seminars and lectures and contact with qualified students as potential employees.

Charter members of the UCI Industrial Associates program are: Allergan Pharmaceuticals; Atlantic Research Corp; Borg-Warner Controls; Coldwell Banker & Co.; Collins Radio Co.; Dana Laboratories; David Industries; Engineered Electronics Co.; Hughes Aircraft Co.; McDonnell-Douglas Corp.; Philco Ford Corp., Aeronutronic Div.; Swedlow, Inc.; Technicolor Corp. of America; Townsend Co., Cherry Rivet Division; Union Oil Co.; United California Bank.

$5,000 Painting For Sale; All Funds to Hospital Drive

An eight foot long still life, valued at $5,000 will be sold at an auction to be held May 3 from 6 to 8:30 p.m. at the gallery of the Laguna Beach Art Association as part of the $2,000,000 expansion fund campaign now being conducted for the South Coast Community Hospital.

The painting, contributed by nationally known Laguna artist Leon Franks, is one of many works of art given by local artists in support of the drive to expand the medical facility which opened as a result of community support in 1958.

Other participating artists, according to John Weld, co-chairman of the benefit art auction, include Rex Brandt, Mrs. Joan Irving Brandt, David Rosen, Burt Proctor and Frank Interlandi.

Early contributors also include artists, Yvonne Kenward, Olivia Stockwell, Vernon Kerr, Frank Hamilton, Eugene Dunlap and Vivian Burchby. Also, Harold Noyes, Marguerita Atcheson, E. Gammell and Anne Von. Additional donars are Gertrude Gardner, Earl Daniels, G. C. Catledge, Harlan Young, Lupe Chown, J. Calvo and Jerry King. Also, Neal Butcher, Peter Grasso, Barbara Weber, J. Marcelle, B. Smith and John McLaughlin.

In order to afford an opportunity for prior inspection of the paintings, which Weld stated are being received daily, two previews will be held at the gallery, 307 Cliff Drive, Laguna Beach, Wednesday and Thursday, May 1 and 2 from 12 noon to 5 p.m.

Cocktails will be served at 6 p.m. The auction, which will be a silent one, will conclude at 8:30.

CHP Warns Dune Buggy Owners

A motor vehicle by any other name — even "dune buggy" — is still a motor vehicle, and must be equipped to meet the standards set by the California vehicle code, according to Cap tain James W. Peters, commanding officer of CHP operations in Orange County.

Apparently this fact is often forgotten, or not understood by enthusiasts who build special motor vehicles, and then seek to register them.

"Buggy builders often find they are unable to register their special new vehicles because they have left off certain pieces of essential equipment required by law, " said the captain. "They would be well advised to find out ahead of time what equipment must be on the vehicle for it to be legal, and install that equipment before attempting to register or operate the vehicle on the highway. Any highway patrol office has a list of required equipment and would welcome any questions the builder may have."

Equipment deficiencies commonly found on this type of vehicle include inadequate lighting and signal systems, unapproved safety glass in windshields, and absence of two windshield wipers and two mirrors. All vehicle owners should make note of the new law that requires two mirrors, one of which must be mounted on the left outside. "The builder also needs to think in terms of an adequate brake system — including the emergency brake, muffler and smog devices, if required, safe tires and wheels, and safety belts," Captain Peters concluded.

Help For Career Minded Women Of All Ages

Career-minded women from high school age through maturity will have a unique opportunity to meet with professional women at a conference to be held on two Saturday mornings on the UC Irvine Campus.

"Problems and Potentials of Educated Women" will be held May 11 and May 25 from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in the Science Lecture Hall and is open free of charge.

"Emphasis will not only be on selecting the right career field, but also on social and psychological hurdles facing women as they go through school and then on to work," says Mrs. Becky Gross, conference coordinator.

"Among the speakers will be experts on women in business, the health professions, personnel, civil services, social service and on volunteer agencies."

Psychological problems and needs of the educated women will be the theme of the May 11 meeting. Speaker is Barbara McGowan, counseling psychologist and associate director of the UCLA Student Counseling Center. The conference will then divide into discussion groups, led by UCI faculty and staff members.

The May 25 meeting will be devoted to answering the questions, "How do I discover which career I'm best suited for?", and "How do I prepare for it realistically?" Speaker is Dr. Dorothy Ford, consultant in business and salesmanship education for Los Angeles County Schools. A panel discussion which follows will be led by Mrs. Lucille Kuehn, University Extension program planner.

Cooperating with University Extension to plan the conference is the UCI Student Activities Office and Phrateres International, women's college service group.

When is a house not a home?

When it's brand new and sitting in the middle of a yard full of dirt . . .

When the nearest tree or shrub is 200 yards down the street . . .

When that large expanse of back yard is unfenced and you have small children who like to wander . .

A UCB home improvement loan takes the worry out of property improvements like putting in a new lawn or shrubbery, a sprinkler system, a fence, or a swimming pool. All you have to do is get an estimate of the job you want done and bring it to United California Bank. Our loan officer is an expert and can process your loan quickly. Your budget won't be strained because the convenient monthly repayments are tailored specifically to fit your budget.

So why wait? Let UCB help make your house a home today!

JANIS VENSTROM

In the last few weeks we have experienced some welcomed warm weather, but as you know if you have lived here for one complete season it does get warmer and warmer and warmer, until we all ask, when will summer end?

Mr. Larry Bufi, a local resident in El Toro, and owner of Omega Pool Company, says there is one very good way to rid yourself of summer heat, right in your own back yard. He installs quality swimming pools and has a guarantee hard to beat. Larry prides himself in quality craftsmanship and it is expressed through the quotes from his many satisfied customers here in the area. This alone is the reason he has been so successful.

Owning your own pool is a wonderful way to keep your children at home and still not hear that dreadful summer whine, "I'm so bored Mom, what is there to do?" A swimming pool serves so many purposes apart from the obvious. It is a healthy way to keep children occupied; an asset to anyone's yard; cuts down on lawn and garden maintenance; serves as a wonderful prop for social occasions, and it tends to keep a family from running in different directions. A small price to pay when you look at it from this aspect rather than just another luxury.

Why not give Larry a jingle for more information on owning your own swimming pool. You will find, it is not as expensive as you might have thought. Small monthly payments seem to be the best way to enjoy all the benefits of recreation at home. You will find Larry at his Tustin office and he will be happy to answer your questions of price estimates. Phone: 838-1882.

Saddleback Bags Books

Saddleback College has received 1,500 books for its library, a gift from the Leisure World Library.

Instrumental in providing the gift was C. A. Armstrong, a resident of Leisure World and consultant to the community's library.

Saddleback College is currently in the process of determining its library needs, and these books came at a very appropriate time, said Librarian Arlene Moore of Saddleback College.

School Crisis

inferior educational program in the high school.

Dahlberg pointed out to the group that the decision on what type and quality of high school program will be determined — in the future — by the vote the local taxpayer casts at the polls on increase in monies.

Dahlberg spoke to the local service club in honor of Public Education Week. He was introduced by Otto Guli, assistant principal at Mission Viejo High and a member of the local Kiwanis Club.

The Superintendent presented to the group projected enrollments for the high school district from 1968 to 1977. The report — in part — showed an October enrollment for the school year 1968-69 of 5,893 students. The enrollment projection for the year 1973-74 showed 8,031 students with the school year 1977-78 showing a projected enrollment of 9,950 students.

Dahlberg also presented to the group an estimated October, 1967 population count for the Tustin Union High School District. Sources for these figures, said Dahlberg, came from the Orange County Planning Department, the Mission Viejo Co. and the Irvine Co.

Total estimated population for the high school area, according to these reports, was 63,169. Population for the greater Tustin area is 42,000; El Toro, 4,000; Leisure World, 10,000; Irvine Ranch, 60; Modjeska Canyon, 300; Trabuco Canyon, 320; Silverado Canyon, 800; Mission Viejo, 3,500 and Villages I and II (the Chancellor Homes) 2,189.

Superintendent Dahlberg pointed out to the group that the above figures are already out-dated since Mission Viejo has presently around 4,400 people residing in their area.

He also presented to the Kiwanis Club of Mission Viejo figures on an estimate of student enrollment in relation to current facilities for the next ten years, and a chart showing State Apportionments for High Schools for the fiscal year 1967-68.

Dahlberg also presented a Resume of Current Bonding for the high school district for the year 1967-68. This economic resume showed the need for a school election sometime during the school year 1968-69.

The Superintendent said that these various studies and forecasts are available in his office at 1171 Laguna Road in Tustin for use by the public.

The Kiwanis Club of Mission Viejo meets every Tuesday at 7:15 a.m. for a breakfast meeting. Bill Wells, of the United California Bank in Mission Viejo, is president of the local service club.
